ADELPHI UNIVERSITY'S PATRICK FIGUEIREDO NAMED 2007 ASC PLAYER OF THE YEAR

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. – Adelphi University junior Patrick Figueiredo (Campinas, Brazil/Collegio Visconde De Porto Seguro) was named the 2007 Atlantic Soccer Conference (ASC) Player of the Year today, in voting done by the league's coaches. A midfielder, Figueiredo leads the ASC in scoring this season with 22 points, collecting 11 goals in 17 contests for the Panthers, who earned the #3 seed for the upcoming conference tournament. In addition to Figueiredo, first-year Head Coach Carlo Acquisti saw freshman forward John Koutsounadis (Flushing, N.Y./Francis Lewis) earn the 2007 ASC Rookie of the Year Award. Koutsounadis put together an outstanding freshman campaign for the Panthers, collecting two goals and two assists in 13 games.

The final major award winner of 2007 went to Florida Atlantic University Head Coach Kos Donev, who was named the ASC Coach of the Year. Donev led his Owls to the ASC regular-season championship with a 4-0-1 record, claiming the top seed for the upcoming ASC Tournament.
